The Proper Time to Plant Bearded Iris

There is a definite dormant period for Iris rhizomes, and with us that period is July and August. From many experiments we find that planting Iris in these two months gives the best results and you are more certain to get blooms the next spring.

When rhizomes reach you a fan or so on the rhizomes will be dry. DO NOT PULL OFF THIS DRY FAN as the wound will be a soft spot later and may cause the rhizome to pass out of the picture.

These dry fans will shove off on their own accord later, as the rhizome grows.

The ideal location for your Iris is a sunny, well-drained position. Sunshine at a minimum half days; Iris will not do well in the deep shade. No water should stand in your Iris beds. Raise beds slightly above the level of your garden paths if necessary.

Beware of too much fertilizer. If in doubt what to use, use bone meal only.

The Proper Time to Plant Hemerocallis (Daylilies)

Although daylilies can be transplanted in the spring, we think the ideal time is after their blooming in late summer or early fall.

September is an ideal month because of the cooler temperatures and possible fall rains. Later planting is O.K. as long as the season provides enough growing weather to establish the roots.

Give all varieties winter protection where needed the first winter planting. Plant two to three feet apart and provide at least half days of sunshine. Do not plant too deeply. The junction of stalk and roots should be only slightly below the ground level. Daylilies are the easiest, most foolproof plants you ever grew. Naturally they, as does any plant, respond to care, good soil, and watering and will repay you many times for the extra effort. Use bone meal as a fertilizer. A generous amount of Peat Moss in the soil will work wonders in establishing plants in their new location.

The Proper Time to Plant Peonies

Peonies may be planted in September, October and November before the ground freezes. We prefer September planting. Select a sunny, well drained location for your peonies. They will tolerate some shade, but should have at least a half-day of sunshine. The best blooms are usually found on plants growing in full sunlight. If you wish to develop large specimen clumps space them four feet apart. Use well-rotted manure and bone meal as a fertilizer.

TERMS USED IN DESCRIPTIONS

Twice Blooming Iris

Some bearded irises have a tendency to bloom in the fall as well as in the spring. These fall blooms are doubly welcome because of their rarity even when they are not of technical perfection. It should be realized that the rapid growth necessary for repeat bloom requires that seasons are favorable in length and rainfall and that the plants are uncrowded.

Listed below are the following irises which often repeat in the fall:

- AUTUMN ELF—Cream standards and flaring falls of lilac. Dainty $.50
- AUTUMN FLAME—A blaze of bright red purple. $1.00
- AUTUMN FROST—A nice white .. $.50

HEMEROCALLIS (Daylilies)

Amazing progress has been accomplished by breeders in the past few years with these delightful waxen, fragrant lily-like flowers held on tall graceful stems, with beautiful grass-like foliage. They are now obtainable in all shades from palest yellow to deep orange, pink rose, red, brown-maroon and the combinations of these shades. They adapt themselves to most any climate and will do well in any type soil. They prefer sun or partial shade and a moderate amount of water. They are pest free. By careful selection of early and late blooming varieties, bloom may be continuous from spring to fall. PLEASE NOTE: We do not ship day-lilies until late summer. Our season begins the last week in August and continues until October 15. Due to handling and mailing costs, the minimum order $4.00 please.

Orders under $4.00 please add 40 cents for postage.

Would you believe that three men were responsible for more than one-third of the above list? Dr. R. E. Kleinsorge has 13, followed by Mr. David Hall with 11 and Mr. Orville Fay with 10. Let's give a salute to three great hybridizers. All members of the American Iris Society are eligible to vote for their favorite iris in this poll. This is one of the many advantages of being an A.I.S. member.
